STRAWBERRY FESTIVAL - THEN AND NOW

The new basement to the Canadice Methodist Church was not completed when the ladies of the Church sponsored the 88th Annual Strawberry Festival in 1967. Building paper was stapled to the ceiling to keep dirt out of the food, temporary extension cords were strung across the rafters to provide illumination from bare bulbs, and a tank truck supplied water for dishwashing. Despite difficulties the Festival was a success. This year the Church will hold its 108th Festival on June 27 under more stable conditions. Photo by John Hopkins Enjoying the 1967 Canadice Methodist Church Strawberry Festival were at far left, Will Preston talking to Laurie and Guthrie Stone. To Guthrie's right, with back to camera, is Doris Stone talking to Robert McDonalds. Delicious strawberries and good company will again be featured at the 108th Festival next Saturday.
